

08/994,038

ABSTRACT

A charge coupled device is manufactured by using a crystalline silicon film that is formed by growing a crystal in parallel with a substrate by utilizing the nickel element with an amorphous silicon film used as a starting film. The crystal growth
5 direction is made coincident with the charge transfer direction. As a result, the charge coupled device is given high charge transfer efficiency.

08994038-12189